> Your supporting wealth chart leans toward actively earned money — income that comes from what you do rather than from what you hold. Building reserves is likely to need more deliberate effort than earning does.

Note

This supporting chart divides every sign in two. It speaks to whether money is earned actively or accumulates and is held — it is not a second horoscope, and it confirms the main chart rather than replacing it.

Evidence

Impact	Strength	Detail
Neutral	55	The supporting wealth chart leans toward money that is actively earned rather than accumulated quietly.

Confirmation

Verdict	Confirms

> The supporting wealth chart agrees with your main reading. When both point the same way, the reading is more dependable than either alone.

> Your chart supports income that is earned rather than easy. That describes the route, not the ceiling. Your income may vary between periods rather than rising evenly. Planning around the quieter stretches matters more for you than for most. This is a reading of potential and shape — a chart cannot name a figure, and any report that does is guessing.

Routes

Ranked

Gated out	7

> Your chart supports wealth building most through foreign or international sources. These are listed in the order your chart supports them, and they narrow the field rather than choosing for you.

Multiple income

Indicated	No
Indicators	0

> Your chart points to income concentrated in one main source rather than spread across several. That is often the more efficient arrangement.

Money management

Verdict	Balanced
Label	Balanced with money
Save score	45
Spend score	40

> You handle money in a reasonably balanced way, neither unusually cautious nor unusually free with it.

Guidance

- Your instincts are sound. Review once a year rather than reacting month to month.
- Keep a reserve you do not touch. Its size matters less than the fact that it exists.

Risk

Verdict	Balanced
Label	Balanced

52 Score

> Your chart points to a balanced approach — willing to take some risk, unlikely to be reckless. This describes your disposition, not what you should do with your money. Decisions about specific investments belong with a qualified financial adviser, not with a birth chart.

Challenges

> Every chart carries something to manage. Yours points to unplanned costs and holding on to what you earn. None of these is a problem you cannot handle — they are simply where deliberate attention pays best.

Business

48.6 Score

Partnership suited	No

> Your chart gives business a workable foundation without strongly favouring it over employment. Either can work. Where you do build something, your chart favours keeping control of it rather than sharing it.

Evidence	—

Property

48.4 Score

D4 used	Yes

> Your chart gives property a reasonable foundation — workable rather than a defining route. This describes potential over a lifetime; a chart cannot tell you whether or when a particular purchase will happen.

Evidence

Neutral	58	The chart governing home and property was read alongside your main chart.

Sudden gains

Indicated	No

> Your chart does not clearly indicate unexpected windfalls. Steady building looks like the more reliable route for you, which is true of most charts.

> The stretch from 30/05/2048 to 27/10/2050 — around age 57 to 60 looks most supportive financially. Its theme is commerce and skill: a period favouring trade, negotiation and skill-based income. Periods like this describe when conditions favour a financial move — they are not a promise of any particular result.

Note	Financial periods are shown as spans, not dates. A chart indicates when conditions favour a move; it does not promise an outcome.

> For building wealth your chart favours Addis Ababa, Medina and Asuncion. These were scored from your own birth chart for each place — not from any general ranking of cities — which is why the order may not match how these places are usually rated.

Note
Every score is calculated from your birth chart for that specific location. A city that suits one financial goal often does not suit another, which is why the list changes by goal.

Positive	60	Cities were scored against your own birth chart for financial life, not taken from a general list.

Guidance

Focus
- Your strongest route to money is foreign or international sources. Effort put there is likely to return more than the same effort spread across everything else.
- If a move is on the table, the stretch from 30/05/2048 to 27/10/2050 is the period your chart supports most. Location and timing agree there, which is worth waiting for rather than moving on impulse.

Build
- Your income looks concentrated in one source. Building even a small second one matters more for its existence than its size — it changes what a bad year does to you.

Protect
- Your instincts are sound. Review once a year rather than reacting month to month.
- Keep a reserve you do not touch. Its size matters less than the fact that it exists.
- A reserve sized to a few months of outgoings turns these from crises into inconveniences.
- Separate the money you spend from the money you keep, in practice and not just in intention.

> This guidance comes from the readings above rather than from general financial advice, which is why some of it will read as obvious and some of it will not. None of it is a recommendation about specific investments — that belongs with a qualified adviser.
